

Anti-Bribery Policy

At Kenmare, our actions are informed by our guiding principles: we care, we grow, we excel. Kenmare is committed to operating in an ethical and honest manner. We have zero-tolerance for bribery and corrupt activities, and we believe in acting professionally, fairly, and with integrity in all business dealings and relationships.

Bribery is a criminal offence in Ireland, Mozambique, the UK and in other jurisdictions around the world and is strictly prohibited by Kenmare. Bribery refers to the act of offering, giving, promising, asking, agreeing, receiving, accepting, or soliciting something of value or of an advantage so to induce or influence an action or decision. The amount of the bribe is irrelevant, it is the intention which makes giving or receiving the bribe an offence.

A bribe refers to any inducement, reward, or object/item of value offered to another individual in order to gain commercial, contractual, regulatory, or personal advantage. Bribery is not limited to the act of offering a bribe. If an individual is on the receiving end of a bribe and they accept it, they are also breaking the law.

In line with our anti-bribery commitment, Kenmare:

- Requires employees to never pay, offer, accept, agree to accept, ask for or facilitate bribes. Kenmare employees must also never authorise nor allow any third-party service providers (such as contractors or suppliers) to pay bribes on Kenmare's behalf.
- Requires employees to never pay or permit third parties to pay "facilitation payments", which are defined as a form of bribery that involves expediting or facilitating the performance of a public official for a routine governmental action.
- Requires employees to seek advice from their manager if they are uncertain about whether something is a bribe or a gift or act of hospitality.
- Requires employees to report any bribes, suspicions of bribes or requests for bribes to their manager as soon as they become aware of them. This includes bribes or suspicions in connection with payments by third parties (e.g. contractors working on Kenmare's behalf).

- Requires employees to be responsible in giving and accepting gifts, entertainment and financial contributions, in line with Kenmare Group standards and procedures. For more information, employees should see Kenmare’s Business Ethics Policy.
- Requires employees to avoid conflicts of interest with the interest of Kenmare, its third-party service providers or other stakeholders. Conflicts of interest are situations in which an individual has competing interests, financial or otherwise, and serving one interest could involve working against the other interest.
- Considers bribery and corruption risks as part of its selection of third-party service providers (including contractors and suppliers)
- Does not give donations or contributions to any political party or make campaign contributions
- Provides training on anti-bribery and business ethics as part of the induction process for all new employees, including management. Employees will also receive regular, relevant training on how to adhere to all relevant policies and guidance in this regard.

We will also provide suppliers of goods and services with this Anti-Bribery Policy and, as set out in our Supplier Code of Conduct, we ask them to take a similar approach. In particular, suppliers are expected to demonstrate zero tolerance for corruption or bribery (including the making of facilitation payments), and to maintain and communicate suitable policies for their employees and agents. Failure by a supplier to meet Kenmare’s expectations may lead to Kenmare terminating its relationship with that supplier.

The Anti-Bribery Policy is implemented by members of the Executive Committee and site leadership. The Audit & Risk Committee, and more widely the Board of Directors, has responsibility for overseeing company-wide compliance with the Anti-Bribery Policy.

This policy was reviewed and approved by the Board of Kenmare Resources plc and is signed by Michael Carvill, Managing Director on behalf of the Board of Kenmare Resources plc.

About Kenmare and scope of policy

Kenmare is an established mining company operating the Moma Titanium Minerals Mine on the north-east coast of Mozambique. This Policy covers the Mine, our Mozambican offices in Nampula and Maputo and our head office in Dublin, Ireland.

We are one of the world’s largest producers of mineral sands products, key raw materials ultimately consumed in everyday “quality-of-life” items such as paints, plastics, and ceramic tiles. We mine titanium-rich sands, mainly using dredges that float in artificial ponds, removing 3-5% of ore mined, and separate it into its constituent minerals. We then progressively rehabilitate the mined land before it is handed back to the local community. Once the minerals are separated, we transport our final products to ocean-going vessels from our dedicated port facility.
